Egyptian police smash drug ring

CAIRO (R) — Police have smashed one of the biggest drug rings supplying opium and heroin to the Middle East and Europe, a senior Egyptian anti-narcoues official said Friday. He said police ambushed a boat stashed with four tonnes of opium, two tonnes of hashish and 300 kilogrammes of heroin near a remote spot on the Red Sea coast at dawn Thursday. All 10 men on board the 878-tonne freighter Reef Star were arrested, Major-General Mohammad Abbas of the Anti-Narcottes General al Administration (ANGA) told Reuters. The drugs, worth more than 300 million Egyptian pounds ($130 million), were hidden in gas cylinders and sacks in a secret compartment beneath the captain's cabin, he said. Abbas said the gang was "the largest international drug ring which produces, processes and smuggles narcotics to the Middle East and Europe." About 20 policemen in civilian clothes approached the Reef Star in two launches, fixed tope ladders to its side and boarded. Its crew of four Sudanese, two Bangladeshis, a Kenyan, a Tanzanian, an Indian and a Somali were asleep and were seized immediately the drugs were discovered. Abbas said the Reef Star had sailed from Pakistan.

U.N. demands immediate release of hostage

UNITED NATIONS (R) - The Security Council Friday unanimously condemned the abduction last February of a U.S. marine serving as a U.N. observer in Lebanon and demanded his immediate release. It also called on member states "to use their influence in any way possible" to secure the release of the officer, Colonel William Higgurs Higgins's wife Robin. who earlier had a meeting with Secretary General Javier Perez de Cuellar, was present when the resolution was adopted. The council also unanimously approved a six-month extension of the mandate of the U.N. Interim Force In Lebanon (see related story on page 5).

Egypt denies Aighan arms supply

MOSCOW (R) -- An Egyptian official denied Friday his country had supplied arms to Afghan rebels fighting the Soviet-backed Kabul government. Minister of State for Foreign Affairs Boutros Ghali told a news conference in Moscow: "Our country supplies weapons to more than 20 countries. Weapons reached the Afghan opposition from other sources, not from Egypt which stands for a peaceful solution to the problems pertaining to Afghanistan."

Embassies said cutting Kabul missions

ISLAMABAD (R) — Diplomatic missions in Kabul are sending non-essential staff and dependants home after an intense rocket barrage on the Afghan capital last week, a Western diplomat said Friday. Concern for the safety of staff and their families in Kabul had prompted at least four European nations to order some people home, he said. Several Middle Eastern states and at least one large Asian country were said to be following suit.

ATHENS (R) - The United States and Greece remain at odds over the future of American military bases here after an eighth round of talks closed Friday, a Greek government spokesman said. "There continues to be a difference of view," the spokesman told reporters. A new round of talks will be held in September.

Genscher begins three-day visit to Moscow

BONN (R) - West German Foreign Minister Hans-Dietrich Genscher arrived in Moscow Friday for talks with Soviet leaders. The three-day visit, Genscher's first for a year, is aimed at paving the way for a trip to Moscow by Chancellor Helmut Kohl in October and will also focus on efforts towards conventional arms reduction in Europe.

Dukakis leads Bush by 17 percentage points

WASHINGTON (R) - Democratic presidential nominee Michael Dukakis holds a 17 percentage point lead over Republican rival George Bush, according to a Wall Street Journal/NBC poll published Thursday. The poll, taken last Saturday after the Democratic national convention, showed Dukakis with a 51 to 34 per cent lead over Bush among those people most likely to vote in the Nov. 8 ercentage point the convention. .

Thatcher heads for Far East

LONDON (AP) - Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher was to leave Friday on a 12-day visit to Australia and five other countries, aimed mainly at marking the 200th anniversary of European settlement in Australia. Thatcher, who was spending Friday night in Bahrain, was also due to go to Oman and Singapore en route to Australia, and to pay official visits to Malaysia and Thailand on the way home.

Seoul names team for border talks

SEOUL (AP) - The National Assembly Friday appointed 15 delegates for parliamentary talks with North Korea on various tension-easing measures and the Olympic games. National Assembly officials said a South Korean letter proposing the talks will be delivered to North Korea through Panmunjom, the border truce site Monday. The letter will also ask North Korea to send an equal number of delegates to the border village for the talks, the officials

ICAO experts arrive in Iran

NICOSIA (AP) - A five-man team from the International Civil Aviation Organisation (ICAO) arrived in Tehran Friday to investigate the shooting down of an Iranian jetliner by an American warship, which killed 290 people. The official Islamic Republic News Agency said the team was due to visit Tehran international airport, where part of Iran's air traffic control network is based. It will later travel to Bandar Abbas airport in southern Iran from where the Airbus jetliner took off on a brief scheduled flight to Dubai July 5. The officials also will go to the area where the plane crashed into the sea near the Iraman island of Hengham in the Strait of Hormuz, the Iraman agency said.

Two Israeli-backed militiamen wounded

MARIAYOUN, Lebanon (R) — Resistance fighters overnight wounded two Israeli-backed militiamen in South Lebanon, security sources said Friday. They said Hizbollah (Party of God) and other fighters Thursday night fought machinegun battles with the South Lebanon Army (SLA) militia. The Islamic Resistance said in a statement they killed or wounded several SLA militiamen in the

N. Yemeni president reappoints premier

SANAA (R) - North Yemeni President Ali Abdullah Saleh reappointed Abdul Aziz Abdul Ghani as prime minister and told him to form a new cabinet, an official decree stated Thursday. Abdul Ghami, 48, prime minister since 1975, resigned with his 16-man cabinet earlier this month after Saleh was re-elected for a third five-year terms. The prime minister is expected to inject new blood into his cabinet, diplomats said.

Somalia, Ethiopia complete PoW talks

NATROBI (AP) - Somalia has agreed to release 3,507 Ethiopian prisoners of war (PoWs) and one Cuban and Ethiopia, in turn, will free 229 Somalis, all of them captured during a 1977-78 war, the official Somali Radio reported Friday. The agreement was concluded Thursday after four days of talks between an Ethiopian delegation led by Defence Minister Mestin Gebrekal and Somali officials, said Radio Mogadishu. The talks were held in Mogadishu, the Somali capital. Most of the PoWs were captured during the East African neighbours war 11 years ago over the Ogaden.

U.N. says Gulf peace talks in 'right direction'

UNITED NATIONS (Agencies) — U.N. Secretary General Javier Perez de Cuellar denied Friday his Iran-Iraq peace talks were deadlocked and said he was very pleased because "things are moving in the right direction."

He told reporters as he arrived at U.N. headquarters he would have another meeting during the day with Iranian Foreign Minister Ali Akbar Velayati.

He said he would also see Iraqi Foreign Minister Tareq Aziz if he found that necessary.

Asked by a reporter if the talks, which began Tuesday, were deadlocked, he replied: "The talks are not... I'll keep trying until the end, and the end is very

Of Places and People

WHEN Abdul Hamid, the Sultan of Turkey, was deposed in 1909, the Committee of Union and Progress took over the reins of government. Turkish nationalism, already rampant under the banner of Pan-Turanism. became even more actively violent. One of the means in which it manifested its policies in the Arab provinces (of the Ottoman empire) was the policy of Turkification. Arab nationalism, which had been already preached in milder forms late in the nineteenth century by numerous writers and poets in Syria and Lebanon, and which had been fairly well received in Iraq, Palestine, Jordan and the Hijaz this (Arab) nationalism reacted as violently towards the Turkification policy. The Great Arab Revolt of 1916 was the practical expression of this reaction. The Allies, through British agents and channels, had raised the hopes of the Arabs through their promises to help them create their own "independent" state. After World War I the Allies not only broke their promises, but even the one "vestige" of the realisation of one of the dreams of Arab nationalism, the Arab state in Syria, was uncouthly swept away by the French (1920). Furthermore Britain, with the approval of the USA, France and Italy, issued the Balfour Declaration (1917) for the creation of a national home for the Jews in Palestine, which implied a Jewish state in the land of Palestine. Mandates were being framed for Iraq, Palestine, Jordan, Syria and Lebanon, and a British protectorate had been declared earlier during the war over Egypt. And victorious states as they were, Britain and France went on completely unabashed. No wonder there was an Egyptian revolution in 1919, an Iraqi revolution in 1920, strikes and protests in Palestine as of 1919 (endless) and numerous revolts in Syria and Lebanon, culminating in the great Syrian rise of 1925.

This was the Arab atmosphere in which we lived. This was explained to us through the only mass media available then — the press. Further elucidation came from our teachers.

We read about Arabian and Arab nationalism. We read more poetry than prose; and in prose there was more romance than analysis. We learnt some things about nationalism in 19th century Europe. Was that a "political" nationalism? Was it a "cultural" nationalism? Did we know the difference? It was held then that the French view was political, while the Germans always meant a "kulfurnation." Where did the

During those years (1921-4), and as a matter of fact for a number of years to follow, there was little analytical study of nationalism in Arabic. This was taken for granted — this is national; but even natural things need an "education, a discussion, an exposition and an argument," otherwise they would lose their meaning.

So I think one problem which disturbed me and a few of my schoolmates then centred around

"What am I? what are we?" Our first interest was directed towards roots. Arabs of nomadic and semi-nomadic dispositions never developed, by force of circumstances, any special attachment to a land as a "home." Land", to them, was an unbounded, undefined area through which they roamed, and where they tried to secure a subsistance for themselves and their animals, with the necessary water resources. The ties which bound the members of their "society" - i.e. the tribe — was thus not a watan. native-land, but a kinship based on "blood" relationship. The Arabic word asabiyya meant just this bond, with its various ways of application and preservation. Hence "geneological" trees played such a major role in the "records' of "history" as appreciated by those people. This sort of "pedigree", to which an Arab attached such a significant "place" was observed in a vacuum of place but not that of time. Hence the "number" of generations which could be

But Arabs were mostly settled people, and this was not a new thing in history. So "land" (a native-land - watan) came to play a role in the psychological constitution of the Arab people. This was something innate, not yet studied. And men-and women at that -- began adding the "place" of their birth to that of their time-honoured "pedigree."

pointed out was of value.

My generation belonged to this category — we were not the first generation of Arabs to have felt" thus, but our situation visa-vis the challenges and impacts imposed this on us more forcibly.

Did we find our identity then? In trying to remember those years and our arguments and discussions, some serious and other not so serious, I seem to have a recollection that we accepted tacitly that we were Arabs - of time (pedigree) and place (native-land or town). I remember how I began collecting oral information from my maternal grandfather, in his eighties then, about our "roots" and the time of "their" arrival in Nazareth. He, it was, who advised me that the "Ziadeh" had been established there for about eight generations (from me upwards Nicola, Abdo, Abdallah, Abdalla (twice) Han-na, Khalil, Hanna, Khalil); that the family had migrated from the neighbourhood of Salt (in Jordan). The family of my paternal grandfather, Kardosh, had connections with the Karadsheh clan of Jordan. His own family had gone from Hosn (Jordan) to Nazareth early in the 19th century. At Nazareth, for reasons which I have been unable to clear so far, the family's name changed from Rihani (or Rayahim) to Shurrush. My grandfather, Abdailah, was born about 1840! His wife's family, Haddad, I was

This satisfied me. Pedigree (time)-wise I belonged to the descendants of the famous Ghassanids, with various additional Arab blood coming from southpated with them in a common history, and shared a common cultural heritage.

The broad outlines were there - the collection of the details and the various stones and bricks to construct the edifice of Arabism (for myself) was to come with

Jordan terminates West Bank development plan

AMMAN (Petra) - The Council of Ministers held a meeting before noon Thursday. At the conclusion of the meeting, which was presided over by the Prime Minister, the Cabinet issued the following statement: The Council of Ministers discussed the measures the Hashe Kingdom of Jordan should take in dealing with the Palestinian problem in its current phase. This was done in the light of the resolutions of Algiers extraordinary summit, which reflected the Arab commitment and intent to support the Arab Palestinian people in their heroic struggle to achieve their national goals under the leadership of the Palestine Liberation Organisation, their sole and legitimate representative.

The Cabinet considered the essential requirements to give greater prominence to Palestinian identity; to enable the PLO to shoulder its responsibility fully; to remove any doubts concerning Jordan's real position in spite of its clarity; and to put an end to Jordan's real position in spite of its clarity; and to put an end to any attempt to suggest that Jordan's motives in supporting the steadfastness of the Palestinian people under occupation are suspect or conducive to promoting what has been referred to as a sharing of administrative responsibility in the occupied territories, and are containing and undercutting the role of the PLO. Moreover, Jordan's motives were subjected to accusations as being contradictory with the againstiant of the Palestinian manual. contradictory with the aspirations of the Palestinian people for independence on their national soil.

On the basis of the results of the discussions in the Council of

In keeping with Jordan's commitment to the Rabat summit resolutions which emphasised that the PLO is the sole and legitimate representative of the Palestinian people;

And in keeping with Jordan's commitment to the Fez Summit resolutions which called for the establishment of an independent Palestinian state in the West Bank and the Gaza Strip;

And in adhering to Jordan's firm and declared position regarding the Palestinian problem, and Jordan's support for the legitimate struggle of the Palestinian people to regain their inalicable national rights and to exercise their right of self-determination. including their right to establish their own independent state on

And in order to give substantial manifestation to the Jordanian concept as outlined by His Majesty the King in his speech at the Algiers summit, in which he stressed that Jordan has no designs or mbitions over Palestinian soil, and in which he elucidated the prerequisites for joint Arab action in support of the Palstinian people in their heroic uprising;
And on the basis of Jordan's firm belief that the Palestinian people should be the principal concerned party in seeking a solution to their problem;

And to remove any doubt which might arise regarding Jordan's relationship with the Palestinian people under occupation, by virtue of Jordan's strong historical and geographical bonds with the Palestinian people.

And in response to the desires and wishes of the PLO, the sole and legitimate representative of the Palestinian people, as expressed by Yasser Arafat, the chairman of the PLO, at the Algiers

Motivated by all the above considerations, the government of the Hashemite Kingdom of Jordan decides:
1. To terminate the Jordanian Development Plan for the occupied territories.

2. To dissolve all the developments, tenders and purchases committees operating within the framework of the aforesaid plan. 3. To continue its contacts with Arab and friendly governments to encourage them to assist the Palestinian people under occupation to enable them to implement their development projects. In announcing this decision, the Government of Jordan wishes to emphasise that it will spare no effort, within its available means, to assist the Palestinian people in the occupied territories in support of their glorious uprising. At the same time, the Government is determined to take any neasures within its mandate which would enhance the Palestinian national cause. The Government of Jordan wishes to make it emphaticully clear that these measures will in no way impinge on the national unity of all the citizens in the Hashemite Kingdom of Jordan. This unity is, and will continue to be, protected. The unity of our people is the solid foundation for the strength of our country and legitimate cornerstone for broader Arab unity with any Arab sister state.

Jordan will continue to play its national role as a confrontation state and as a principal party to the Arab-Israeli conflict, in cooperation and coordination with its Arab brethren, to free the occupied Arab territories with their gem, the Arab Muslim city of

Jordan expects shortage of 1,400 nurses by year 1995

AMMAN (Petra) — The Higher Council of Health (HCH) in Jordan expects a shortage of 1,400 nurses in the Kingdom by the year 1995 if the present annual rate of nurses graduation is maintained, and therefore it is exerting all possible efforts to deal with the situation, according to HCH Secretary General Faisal Al Dahleh.

The present number of nurses employed in the Kingdom now stands at 2,055 of whom 559 are non-Jordanians. Dahleh said in an interview with the Jordan

News Agency, Petra. According to the Health Ministry's five-year development plan Jordan's population will be 4.5 million by the year 2,000, requiring 13,500 hospital beds at the rate of 30 beds for every 10,000 inhabitants, and at least 4,387 qualified nurses to offer nursing services to them

Dhaleh said that at the current rate of nurses graduation from different nursing schools the country will face a shortage of 257 nurses at least by the end of the Present century.

The HCH has conducted a study designed to help the country attain self-sufficiency in nurses and has decided to set up a regional centre for training instructors for nurses. Dahleh said.

Dahleh, who expects the new centre to go into operation before the end of this year, said that the graduates will augment the present number of teachers at nursing schools which at present are facing a growing numbers of applications by women seeking to become qualified nurses.

The HCH is currently involved in upgrading the qualifications of nurses by offering them courses to acquire BA degrees in nursing at the University of Jordan and the Jordan University of Science and Technology (JUST). Dahleh noted.

He said that 110 male and temale nurses will graduate from the two universities with B.A. degrees annually in accordance with the new arrangements.

Additional numbers of nurses with diplomas will graduate from Health Ministry nursing colleges in Amman, Zarga and Irbid as well as the Armed Forces nursing schools, Dahleh added.

In addition, he said, the ministry of Education's schools will continue to graduate more than 800 assistant nurses every year. Referring to the qualified midwives, Dohleh said that their number in Jordan now stands at 413 of whom 47 are foreigners. Health Ministry nursing colleges turn out 50 qualified midwives annually, but the shortage in midwives is still estimated at Dahleh predicted that Jordan will need 700 qualified midwives by the year 1995, and 1,163 by the end of the century, and that there will be a shortage of 344 midwives by the year 2000 unless the current rate or graduates is raised to 85 annually.

The country now has 1,835 assistant nurses of whom 48 are non Jordanian, according to Dahleh who expects a shortage of 750 in the number of assistant nurses by the turn of the century.

Dahleh said that assistant nurses receive 18 month training courses following graduation from Ministry of Education's school and their number is on the increase. The number of working nurses at the University of Jordan's hospital now stands at 316, of whom 111 hold university degrees. according to the hospital's Director General Dr. Mohammad Al Rashdan. He said the hospital has lately appointed 100 foreign nurses and 30 Jordanian nurses to meet the growing demand on nursing services.

The Jordan University hospital annually dispatches 30 of its nursing staff members to the nursing faculty of the University of Jordan to acquire B.A. degrees in nursing, in a bid to promote the standard of nursing services, Rashdan pointed out.

He said that the hospital has been included under the umbrella of the newly established National Health Institution (NHI), and all measures to appoint nurses for the hospital are being coordinated with that institution and the Health Ministry.

The University of Jordan's Nursing Faculty's deputy Dean Dr. Raghda Shukri said that 24 male and female students were accepted by the faculty in 1973, but it is now turning out 110 nurses annually.

Faisal Al Dahleh

Hashem Salamel

She said the faculty has opened courses for an M.A. degree and 10 students will graduate with this degrees this year and a number of the graduates are being sent abroad for their Ph.D degrees.

Nursing courses cover anatomy, general nursing, internal nursing, children and women nursing, mental nursing, society nursing and the general management of patients services, in addition to courses in laboratory tests and training at various health institutions in Jordan. Dr. Shukri added.

thousands of people wishing to learn the profession, according to Hashem Salameh, president of the Nursing and Midwives Assocration.

Salameh told the Jordan News Agency, Petra, that work is underway to introduce an amendment to laws, making them incumbent upon all qualified nurses and midwives to work at hospitals and health centres operated by the Ministry of Health or the Armed Forces Medical Services for at least two years.

He said this move is being taken to help meet the shortage in the number of nurses in the

Al Ra'i: Removing doubts

JORDAN'S termination of its development plan for the occupied Arab territories came in response to the desires and intents of the PLO which is the sole and legitimate representative of the Palestinian people. This move should not be considered as a shirking of national responsibility towards the Palestinian people, nor is it an irrational decision. Over the past years, Jordan has shouldered its national responsibilities towards the Palestinian people inside and outside the occupied territories, and it has always believed that there should be no rivalry with the PLO in representing the Palestinians. The decision came to remove any doubts concerning Jordan's real position in spite of this clarity. It is to put an end to any attempt to suggest that Jordan's motives in supporting the steadfastness of the Palestinian people under occupation are suspect or conducive to promoting what has been referred to as a sharing of responsibility in the occupied lands. The official statement, in manifestation of Jordan's commitment, urged all Arab states to extend help and support to the oppressed people and offered renewed pledge that Jordan will continue to seek liberation of the occupied Arab lands.

Al Dustour: Jordan renews support for Palestinians

JORDAN'S strong commitment to the national Arab causes and its belief leadership towards the service of Arab people. Jordan's position was perhaps more elaborately displayed in the Kingdom's continued support for the Palestinian people in their struggle to end aggression and occupation of Arab lands. Jordan has always been keen on removing any doubts about its moves among the Palestinian people; and has always been keen on allowing the PLO to serve as the sole and legitimate representative of the Palestinian people. This national stand has also guided Jordan in maintaining its assistance to the Palestinian people; and prompted King Hussein to announce at the Algiers summit that Jordan has no territorial ambitions in Palestine. The Jordanian government's move to cancel the development plan for the occupied territories came to remove all traces of doubts about Jordan's intentions, and the Kingdom's stand. The decision should be regarded also as another Jordanian step to enhance the Palestinian identity of the oppressed people under Israeli occupation. The statement, which carried the government's decision renewed Jordan's pledge to continue supporting the Palestinian people and urged all Arab countries to provide every possible assistance in this

Sawt Al Shaab: Projecting Palestinian

IT is clear that the Jordanian government's statement, announcing the termination of its development plan for the occupied Arab territories was intended to project the Palestinian identity and enable the PLO to exercise its role and shoulder its full responsibility towards the Palestinian people. The statement also removed doubts about Jordan's position, and put an end to any misinterpretation of its moves in serving the Palestinian people and supporting their steadfastness. The government statement put an end to rumours about Jordan's intentions of terminating the salaries of government employees living in the West Bank and the dissolution of Parliament and other irrational and unrealistic moves reported by different information media. The statement was clearly intended to project Jordan as no rival to the PLO in offering help to the Palestinians and to help the organisation to shoulder its responsibility on the regional and international scenes in its capacity as the sole and legitimate representative of the Palestinian people. Any Jordanian government measure taken in this respect should be interpreted as coming in response to the desires of the PLO.

Al Ra'i: Iraq wants real peace

CURRENT efforts by the U.N. Secretary General to end the Gulf conflict coincide with stepped up combat activity along the battlefront. This is a normal phenomenon that precedes the ceaselire or end of war; and the period between agreement to stop the war and ceasefire is usually exploited by parties to the conflict in a hid to ensure a better bargaining position at the negotiating table. But this period has brought about further position at the negotiating table. Dut this period has triong in book this setbacks for Iran and also proved that Iraq seeks a lasting peace and not a mere truce which can be violated at any time in the future. However, we ieve that diplomatic efforts being made at the United Nations, and the U.N. secretary general's meetings with the foreign ministers of Iraq and Iran do not tolerate further procrastinations, and should be made to yield fruitful results if the Gulf region is to enjoy peace. Since Iraq has explicitly displayed its genuine desire for peace. Iran for its part, should try to avoid any move that would obstruct diplomatic efforts for the implementation of U.N. Security Council Resolution 598. Peace between the two Gulf neighbours is the aspired dream of all countries of the world.

Al Dustour: Hope for Lebanon

ARAB countries in general and the people of Lebanon in particular are watching with keenness current diplomatic and political moves preceding the election of a new Lebanese president. They are all awaiting an end to the long period of sufferings to which the Lebanese people have been subjected; and awaiting a settlement of differences among various factions ough a national reconciliation. A genuine reconciliation among the Lebanese would no doubt open up a new era for the Lebanese people, and pave the road for reconstruction and an end to civil strife that can benefit no party. According to the provisions of the Lebanese constitution, efforts are now underway to pave the ground for the president's elect-on; and as the contacts and consultations are being made, a new hope is infused in the hearts of millions of Arabs for a lasting settlement in Lebanon. It is hoped that the heads of political parties and factions will succeed in reaching consensus, since by doing so, they will help to safeguard their country's sovereignty and preserve its unity.

Iran's announcement that it wants a ceasefire in its war with Iraq is only the latest in a series of apparent breakthroughs in many international conflicts.

That is not to say that all the world's problems have been solved. The citizens of Lebanon and Ethiopia would no doubt be among the first to stress that point.

But international conflicts involving shooting seem to be definitely on the retreat, and analysts here see superpower weariness as the common threat linking the long list of peace

- In April, Moscow announced it would pull its troops out of Afghanistan after nine years fighting anti-government — In the same month, the

Sandinistas and the contra rebels started their first formal ceasefire in the seven-year Nicaraguan ate/range nuclear weapons.

- In June, the warring parties in Kampuchea finally agreed to talk to each other, raising hopes of an end to that nine-year-old problem. They met in Jakarta last Monday.

 In July, Cuba and South Africa announced they had reached agreement in principle to end the Angolan civil war, which began in 1975. Talks begin in Geneva next month.

Improved superpower relations

 Also in July, Chad and Libya held their first high-level direct talks in so many years.

So given the huge influence of the superpowers on international affairs and their apparent mutual interest to get on together, can we look forward to quieter times

Maybe, say the analysts, and then again, maybe not.

Inoguchi said the Chinese leadership in Peking were the most optimistic about the newly emerging world scene.

"The Chinese say they don't see any major power conflict for the next few decades," he said. They say the superpowers are tired of the arms race and have economic problems, so we will basically have a peaceful international environment."

Inoguchi said he found the Chinese analysis too optimistic, but added: 'The U.S. and the Soviet Union will be more and more concerned with their own things, and other countries will become more assertive - Japan, China India mavbe.

The following is part one of a report on the Dahriyyeh detention prison in the West Bank. The report was compiled by Al Haq, Law in The Service of Man, a West Bank human rights organisation affiliated to the International Commission of Jurists. The word tertur is Israeli army slang for practices short of torture. Implementing this policy, the first 3,000. army detention centre was opened in Al Fara'a, north of Nablus.

Giving evidence on the use of tertur before a court in December 1982, Captain Artzi Mordechai, an Israeli operations officer serving in the West Bank, said:

"In addition to this business where we work to discover the provocateurs, you tertur the population. Population tertur does not mean that you punish those who did something, but you simply round up everyone just

Al Haq has monitored the conditions of detention in Al Fara's since its establishment, and, in 1984, released two reports on this issue. In Torture and Intimidation in the West Bank - The Case of Al Fara'a Prison, a report co-published with the International Commission of jurists in Geneva, Al Haq came to the conclusion that

"[T]he main purpose of Al Fara'a has been and continues to be the facilitation of the policy of 'population tertur' .... [C]onditions at Al Fara'a were made deliberately harsh with the apparent aim of humiliating and degrading the detainees

The Dahriyyeh Detention Centre, which was officially opened in mid-December 1988 but which is already notorious for its harsh conditions, is another example of a place of detention used for this purpose. Detainees at Dahriyyeh are beaten, humiliated and subjected to a list of rules aimed at degrading the person. They suffer from centre.

Arbitrariness in applying punitive measures, whether provided for by law like arrest, or illegal, like beating, is a common element in the Israeli response to the Palestinian uprising.

The Israeli military orders grant wide powers of arrest to soldiers. According to Military Order 378, every soldier is entitled to arrest any person for 18 days without a court order, on the basis of suspicion that he committed a "security offence." There is no provision to say that this suspicion must be a reasonable one. Every Palestinian is therefore at risk of arrest and detention for up to 18 days which does not have to be justified before any legal au-

Every detainee who has passed through Dahriyyeh, regardless of his physical condition, his age, his professional and social status, has gone through a process of intimidation at the hands of the Israeli soldiers.

Blindfolded and handcuffed, their hands behind their backs, detainees are pushed by soldiers to a bus to be taken to Dahriyyeh. The bus makes several stops at military government buildings in the West Bank to collect more detainees. Each detainee has to sit with his head bowed below the level of the seat back and is ordered not to make any move. On the way to Dahriyyeh, soldiers beat, shout at and insult the detainees and hit their clubs against the seats, creating an atmosphere of terror. Upon arrival at Dahriyyeh, the detainees are ordered to step out of the bus, still blindfolded and handcuffed, and ordered to keep their heads bent down. They are led walking between soldiers who beat them on different parts of their bodies and bang their clubs against the barrels in the yard, creating a loud noise, to intimidate the prisoners who are already disorientated.

Afterwards they are required to stand in line to deliver their belongings. Some detainees were kept standing in the yard in the manner described above for between 10 and 72 hours before being admitted to the prison. After handing in his personal items, each detainee is given a number. From this moment onwards, he ceases to be a person. He is referred to as a number.

The initial process does not end here. Each detainee still has to go through the medical examination. According to detainees, the medical officer at Dahriyyeh also carries a club and does not hesitate to use it while examining the detainees. Several reports given to Al Hao confirm that detainees had to stand naked for hours during winter at the door of the medical officer waiting for the examination. From now on he is instructed to address every soldier as a Captain. Should he fail to do so, he is punished. Finally, the detainee is taken to his room, cell or tent. When the door opens, the other detainees already locked inside the room have to stand away from the door with their faces to the wall and hands behind their

Later on, the prisoners were themselves ordered to reconstruct these rooms to create more rooms and cells. At present there are a total of 20 rooms, measuring from 12 to 40 square metres each. An additional 10 small ceils were also constructed.

Overcrowding in the rooms and the inadequate size and number of windows and the fact that these are either covered with metal shields or look over a closed area prevent the detainees from getting enough light or fresh air, nor is there adequate space for all to lie down to sleep. Reports made to Al Haq indicate that, as well as the rooms and cells at Dahriyyeh, the authorities of the centre are using 6 tents to contain detainees. Each tent is around 10m x 4m in area, and is surrounded by a fence. Each tent holds 23 to 28 de-

Egyptian fundamentalists say singing is sinful

By Sara El Gammal Reuter

CAIRO — Egyptian hardline Muslim fundamentalists are prepared to use violence if necessary to persuade this nation of music-

A student was killed in Assiut, southern Egypt, in March when fundamentalists armed with knives and chains clashed with police after attacking a university theatre for performing what they called a blasphemous play.

Others disrupted wedding parties and university concerts in Cairo, hitting guests and smashing musical instruments and amplifiers. The leading religious authority in this mainly-Muslim country stepped into the fray this month. giving some consolation to both

Sheikh Gad El Hag Ali Gad El Haq, rector of Cairo's Al Azhar University, ruled that music was not contrary to Islam provided songs were not obscene, did not encourage promiscuity, crime, or the use of drugs or alcohol.

He said there were no verses in the Koran, the Muslim Holy book, or the Hadith, the teachings of the Prophet Mohammad, which directly prohibited songs or music.

"But there are conditions for music and singing. Songs that oppose the teachings of Islam, which praise sinful acts and encourage them are forbidden," he said. "They must not be performed or heard."

Two Syrian soldiers shot dead in Beirut

BEIRUT (Agencies) - An unidentified gunman date for a special session to elect killed two Syrian soldiers near a Syrian-manned checkpoint in west Beirut, security sources and witnesses said Friday.

They said the gunman, clad in military fatigues like those used by the Lebanese army, shot dead the soldiers Thursday night using a gun fitted with a silencer. The two Syrians died instantly, about 200 metres from the checkpoint. the sources told Reuters.

Syrian soldiers brandishing automatic rifles and rocket launchers immediately sealed-off the Corniche Mazraa area where the soldiers were shot.

The Syrians were in a state of total panie. They started beating everyone in sight. Look what they have done to my eye," said Bassem Ali who was in the nearby Abu Khodr restaurant when the shooting took place.

The attack was the latest in a tring of assaults aimed against the Synan presence in Lebenon. Last week a carbomb killed seven Lebanese and wounded three Syrian soldiers in a crowded residential district. On July 1, two carbombs ripped through Syrianheld areas of Beirut and the eastern Bekan Valley, wounding 47 people.

DUBAI - Salvage executives in the Gulf have been dubbed 'the vultures of war" for profiting from Iraqi and Iranian attacks on ships.

But many among them in Dubai, a shipping centre in the southern Gulf, predict they can double profits when Iran and iraq sign a ceasefire agreement and the Gulf becomes politically calm again.

The salvagers had earned criticism because of the speed with which they raced to the scene of ship attacks to compete for the job of retrieving sunken or sinking vessels.

The first tugboat on the scene traditionally wins the job, and since the tanker war began escalating in 1984, salvage companies have fought for a share of the work that beckoned once their radios crackled "Mayday, Mayday." the common distress

The salvage men defend their role. "Yes, I make money, big money," said one, who didn't want his name used. "But I'm no vulture. I'm an angel of mercy who just happens to get paid for saving ships, cargos, and mens' lives."

By the account of Lloyd's shipping intelligence unit in London, 546 tankers, freighters and small boats including salvage tugs, have been caught in the tanker war. Not all put out distress signals. Some sank be-fore help could reach them. Others sank as the salvagers worked on them.

With 24-hour monitoring stations and fleets of fire-fighting tugs and launches, large international companies like the Dutch Smit Tak and Wijsmuller took the largest share of the work. Salvage claims on a badly-damaged tanker can run into tens of millions of dollars.

Local entreprenuers sprang up from Dubai's port town of Jabal Ali south-to the entrance to the Strait of Hormuz. According to one shipping executive, also speaking on condition of anonymity, "every man and his dog with a boat and a radio listening to Channel 16 (the international marine emergency frequency) could become a part-time :alvager."

'Occupational hazards'

Not only did they have to contend with the dangers of such a job — flames, toxic chemicals, explosions — they also lived with the fear that while at the salvage job the raiders, Iraqi or Iranian, might come back for a second go at their target.

Last January, the 740-ton Salverve was towing the 225,668-ton Cypriot tanker Coral Cape hit by Iraqı missiles when the Iraqis returned to attack again. This time they blasted the Salverve, killing its British captain and his Filipino chief engineer.

In the first attack, two South Korean seamen were killed. The world's biggest supertanker, the 565,000-ton Seawise Giant, on charter to Iran from Hong Kong, was hit by three Iraqi bombs. To one side of the mother ship, the 235,000-ton Spanish export tanker Barcelona, took two hits. On the other side, the Greek-registered shuttler tanker Argosy escaped the warplanes, but was destroyed

In several cases salvagers have successfull blasted tankers in half using explosive charges ringed around the middle of the hull. A neat, scaled cut is possible because of a tanker's compartmentalised storage tanks. The huge vessels can then be towed away in more manageable, watertight

One bizarre-looking example of this innovative process is the 233,788-ton Zarra, struck by Iraqı missiles and beached. The bow of the supertanker is now anchored away from its stern off Jabai Ali.

When the war ends, the type of work for salvagers will change. Instead of rapid fe sponse to Mayday alerts, the tugs will work the Iranian coast. for the lucrative task of clearing slup hulks, reconstructing port facilities and dredging neglected harbours.

Shipping sources say dozens of dilapidated, war-damaged tankers and support vessels from Iran's oil shuttle fleet are in need of major repair or demolition for scrap.

Vessels which cannot be recommissioned are of particular value to scrap metal merchants, who bargain fiercely in Dubai for recycled steel "The amount of work that could soon become available all along the Iranian coast is mindboggling," said one shipping executive, who declined to be Another prime location for salvagers will be the disputed Shatt Al Arab estuary dividing Iran and Iraq. Lloyd's shipping intelligence unit in London estimates that as many as 93 cargo vessels and smaller boats hit in Iraqi attacks during the early 1980s are stranded in the shallow tributary feeding into the northernmost tip of the Gulf.

Al Shiraa says all foreign hostages to be released soon

BEIRUT (Agencies) - The Beirut weekly magazine Al Shiras reported Friday that contacts were currently under way for the quick release of the 18 foreigners held hostage by Iranian-backed factions in Lebanon. "The issue of the foreign hostages held in Lebanon will find its way to a happy ending soon." the magazine quoted an unnamed informed security source as saving. The report said "high-level contacts are under way between officials of the hostages' nations, especially the United States, and a state that has direct influence on the hostages.

It quoted the sources as saying that "no intermediaries" were involved in the alleged "direct contacts.

"A settlement to the hostages" issue will coincide with the U.S. presidential elections" in early November, the report said. It did not disclose further details.

The magazine gained international fame when it broke the story of secret U.S. arms sales to Iran in return for the release of hostages in 1986. However, its recent reports on the hostages have not all been accurate. Hashemi Rafsanjani said Wednesday his country would be prepared to "help solve" the hostages' issue if U.S. President Ronald Reagan released frozen Iranian assets.

"If Reagan were sincere he...

would release the Iranian assets," Rafsanjani told the official Islamic Republic News Agency. "I have said that once he does so then we will use our leverage in Lebanon and help solve the issue of the hostages," he added. In Washignton, White House spokesman Marlin Fitzwater responded to Rafsanjani's offer by saying: "No deals. The clearest signal they could send is to release the hostages." The 18 foreign captives in an Italian, an Irishman, an Indian and two unidentified foreign

Police link Abu Nidal to Frankfurt blast

KARLSRUHE, West Germany (Agencies) — Police believe the radical Palestinian Abu Nidal group was behind a bomb attack at Frankfurt airport in June 1985, the federal prosecutor's office said Thursday.

The June 19 bombing, which killed three people and injured 74 others, occurred five days after a U.S. Trans World Airlines plane was hijacked from Athens to Beirut. Several groups claimed responsibility.

A spokesman for the prosecutor's office, Hans-Juergen Foerster, said police had concluded their part of an investigation into the attack. The prosecutor's final report will be published later.
He said the authorities had investigated four Abu Nidal members, Alaaeddin Fouzzi, Ali Sinrin Ghassan, Hisham Ibrahim Mahmood and Khaled Ibrahim Mahmood. Mohammad Ali Hamadi, a

Israel allows direct exports from Gaza

TEL AVIV (R) — Israel will allow Gaza Strip producers to export citrus fruit directly to Western Europe for the first time, foreign ministry sources said Friday.

Western diplomats said the agreement was a breakthrough for producers in the occupied West Bank and Gaza. They have previously had to ship their fruit through Israel to traditional markets in Jordan and Eastern

The export of 13,000 tonnes of oranges and 3,000 tonnes of grapefruit to the European Community (EC) would give Gaza the start of an economy independent of Israel, they said.

Shipments will go from Israeli ports between next October and April under contracts signed with importers in the Netherlands, West Germany, Denmark and Britain.

The EC, which negotiated the deal with Israel, will appoint an official to supervise the exports in Gaza from September, sources close to the EC said.

An Israeli company will package the fruit but quality control and shipping will be independent of Israeli authorities.

The diplomats said there were prospects of a much bigger deal for West Bank producers to sell fruit to the EC.

The Israeli foreign ministry sources said the Gaza arrangement, approved by an inter-ministerial committee Thursday, established a mechanism which could apply in future cases.

These are the first direct agricultural exports from the occupied territories to Western Europe," one said.

dollars of short-term trade debt built up with Western banks and there are signs Tehran has been quietly borrowing to finance arms purchases.

That would be a dramatic reversal of policy for a regime that in 1981 repaid overnight nearly $7 bilion of debt from the Shah's regime in a deal to release U.S. hostages and in the early years of the war paid cash for imports.

But it is also entirely consistent with the new brand of pragmatism championed by military chief Ali Akbar Hashemi Rafsanjani that appears to have won an upper hand among the leadership, exemplified by the shock decision 10 days ago to agree to a U.N. ceasefire order.

Subroto expects higher oil prices

in October.

ABU DHABI, United Arab Emirates (AP) — OPEC Secret-ary-General Subroto was quoted Friday as saying he expected an oil price increase over the coming weeks because of the possibility of an end to the Iran-Iraq war.

The statements by Subroto, who heads the 13-nation Organisation of Petroleum Exporting Countries (OPEC), were published in the United Arab Emirates newspaper Al Ittihad.

Subroto was in the UAE on a two-day visit for discussions on the oil market situation with its leaders ahead of the OPEC fivepanel pricing committee meeting in Lausanne, Switzerland Aug. 3.

The state-run Al Ittihad quoted Subroto as saying that the world market "looks forward to positive the deficit are made between now results" from the pricing commitand next October, no sequester | tee. It said he expressed his expectation of an increase in oil 948,000 barrels and produce abprices over the coming weeks. In Subroto's view, according to the paper, the prices have been improving because of the prospects of a peaceful end to the nearly 8-year-old Iran-Iraq war.

That settlement would lead to 'positive impact" on the oil market and oil prices, the paper further quoted Subroto as saying. But it said he could not predict whether prices would increase beyond the OPEC benchmark of $18 a barrel. He said a report was being prepared on reorganisation of the OPEC framework and that the report would be submitted to the ministerial council of the organisation at its bi-annual meeting in November, according to Al Ittihad. But there was no elaboration on this score. Subroto was in Saudi Arabia before coming to the UAE as part of a tour of OPEC member states aimed at acquiring assurances about adherence to the group's production quotas so as to help stabilise world oil rices around the $18 benchmark.

Because of the Iran-Iraq war, Iraq has refused to accept its OPEC-decreed quota and produces almost double what it is assigned, while Iran is widely accused of discounting prices to market its crude oil under the war-time conditions. That could change if the war came to an end, hence the hopes by Subroto and others who say that the prices could rise. Other OPEC member states are also accused of violating production and pricing rules of the group.

The UAE was held responsible for a price decrease in June after it served notice that it will ignore its OPEC oil production quota of to its war with Iraq.

out 50 per cent more as it considered its "fair" quota should be 1.5 million barrels per day.

Oil sources here said that Subroto was seeking a compromise regarding the UAE claim. Subroto has conferred with UAE Oil Minister Mana Saeed Otaiba and with UAE President Zayed Ibn Sultan Al Nahyan to whom he delivered a message from the OPEC president and Nigerian Oil Minister Rilwanu Lukman.

The official Emirates News Agency WAM reported after the meetings Thursday that Sheikh Zaved affirmed his nation's support for "unity and cohesion" within the organisation and noted that his country "has always been at the forefront for boosting OPEC decisions and supporting the stability of the oil market."

The WAM report did not specifically address the controversial issue of UAE oil production, but indicated that the UAE will not undermine the group by adopting unilateral decisions within the 13nation group before the fulldress aual ministerial meeting in November.

Subroto also told Al Ittihad that the sheikh affirmed to him the UAE's "support and con-solidation" of OPEC. He said he was submitting a report to the pricing committee on his talks in the UAE as well as Saudi Arabia and that the Lausanne meeting would also discuss the UAE anota request.

The pricing committee, whose members are oil ministers of Saudi Arabia, Nigeria, Indonesia, Algeria and Venezuela, was meeting in wake of the Iranian decision to accept a U.N. Security Council cease-fire resolution

Mill marries Evert today

BOCA RATON, Florida (AP) - Andy Mill said be used to enjoy watching Chris Event's terms matches on television. When he first saw her in person on a cold new year's eve in Colorado nearly 19 months and he said he fell in love. On Saturday, he and Evert will exchange weeding yows at the polo club in Boea Raton. "I was really contous about who this person was because, well, celebrities and athletes are a dime a dozen," said Mill, e 35-year-old former U.S. Olympic steer. "I was real concerned with getting to know this little person here. I didn't want to talk about Martina (Navratilava) or the Grand Slam. ... I wanted to talk about Chrissie." About 100 family members and friends, including tennis stars Navretilova and Pam Shriver and actress Lynda Carter, are expected to attend the ceremony. Both Evert and Mill were ending eight-year marriages when they first met.

Billy Bonds finally retires

LONDON (R) - West Ham United veteran midfielder Billy Bonds, the English Football League's oldest player, has decided to finally retire after 660 league games and become the club's youth coach. Bonds, 42 in September, began his career with Charlton in 1964 and moved to West Ham three years later. Last season he was recalled from semi-retirement to play 23 league games when the club had injury problems.

Ethlopian wins gold medal at world meet

SUDBURY, Outario (R) - Addis Abebe, 18, of Ethiopia, won the first gold medal at the World Junior Athletics Championships Wednesday when he took the 10,000 metres in 28 minutes 42.13 seconds. Compatriot Bedelu Kibret won the silver medal in 28:48-55 and Kenyan James Songok captured bronze with a time of 28:50.42. The 10,000 metres was the only final on the first of live days of international competition for more than 1,150 athletes aged 19 and under. African athletes, traditionally strong in long-distance events, dominated the race, with six runners in the top 10.

Anderlecht seeks Polish striker

WARSAW (R) - Belgian soccer champions Anderlecht have joined the chase for Pobsh international striker Dariusz Dziekanowski of Legia Warszawa, Legia coach Andrzej Strejlau said Thursday, Strejlau told the newspaper Zycie Warszawy that Anderlecht officials were in Warsaw for talks but gave no further details. Italian side Pescara have also expressed an interest in Dziekanowski, Poland's top goalscorer last season, but talks broke

Archibald ends contract with Barcelona

BARCELONA, Spain (R) — Scottish striker Steve Archibald ended his comract with Barcelona Thursday after four years with the club, a Barcelona spokesman said. Archibald, 31, still had two years with the Catalans but the club said he did not figure in new trainer Johan Crayff's plans for this season. Archibald, who has no firm offers to join any other club, said he was going with a certain bitterness over what had happened but was happy to see an end to his problems with Barcelona. He spent the second half of last season on loan to English second division side Blackburn Rovers as the two foreign places with Barcelona the club were taken by England's Gary Lineker and West German Bernd Schuster. Schuster has now joined Barcelona's arch-rivals Real Madrid. Archibald signed for Barcelona from Tottenham in 1984 for £900,000 ($1.55 million). The club would not say what they were paying him in compensation.

Tita leaves Leverkusen over pay dispute

LEVERKUSEN, West Germany (R) — Brazilian soccer international Tita is leaving UEFA Cup holders Bayer Leverkusen because of a pay dispute, the West German club said Thursday. Leverkusen said they would seek $400,000 compensation from any future club, the same amount they paid Rio de Janeiro club Flamengo for the 22-times capped midfielder in 1987. New coach Rinus Michels, who took The Netherlands to the European Championship last month, said: "Such a player normally forms part of any trainer's plans, but a dissatisfied player does not."

Migeot to join Tyrrell

LONDON (R) - Former Ferrari aerodynamicist Jean-Claude Migeot will join the Tyrrell motor racing team in September, the British Formula One team announced Friday. Frenchman Migeot, 35, worked for Renault for four years before joining Ferrari where he worked on development of the Italian team's Formula One cars for three years. He left recently during Ferrari's engineering management restructuring. His appointment follows that of British designer Harvey Posthlewaite who has also recently left Ferrari. He takes over as Tyrrell's engineering director on August 1.

Tennis fans demand 'money back'

HAMBURG, West Germany (R) - An out of form Wimbledon champion Steffi Graf endured the rare insult of hearing a chanting crowd demand their money back at the $200,000 Hamburg women's tennis tournament Thursday. Graf, winner of the Australian, French and Wimbledon titles this year, eventually subdued Yugoslav Sabrina Goles, ranked 46th in the world, 6-4, 6-2 but only after she became furious with herself at the number of unforced errors she committed. The West German's usually lethal forehand missed the intended target so often that some of the 3,000 spectators started taunting her by shouting for a refund. Graf trailed 3-0 in the first set before managing to reverse the trend and win the set in 43 minutes — five minutes longer than she took to beat Czechoslovak Regina Marsikova in the second round.

Noah advances in Bordeaux tennis

BORDEAUX, France (AP) - Yannick Noah of France struggled but advanced to the second round in the $245,000-Grand Prix passing shot men's tennis tournament Wednesday. The top-seeded Noah lost the first set in a tiebreaker then outlasted Guillermo Rivas of Argentina, 6-7, 7-5, 6-3. Noah returned to France from Sweden where he lost to Mats Wilander in the opening singles match of the Davis Cup semifinals. After Sweden clinched the tie, he passed up the remaining singles. Another participant from the France-Sweden encounter, Kent Carlsson of Sweden, also won on Wednesday. Carlsson, seeded No. 2 in the tournament, defeated Pat Baur of West Germany, 6-3, 6-2. In second round matches, Thomas Muster of Austria, seeded No. 3. ousted Claudio Pistolesi of Italy, 6-2, 6-1, Lawson Duncan of the United States, No. 8, whipped Alberto Tous of Spain, 6-2, 6-0, and Luis Mattar of Brazil, No. 6, downed Fernando Luna of Spain, 6-4, 6-4. Play continues through Sunday with a $43,000 first prize.

Greek and Turkish teams draw in friendly

ATHENS (R) - Greece's Aek drew 2-2 with Turkish first division champions Galatasaray Wednesday in the first soccer match between teams from the two countries for 21 years. A crowd of 35,000 watched the match which was highlighted by two goals by Galatasaray striker Cevad Prekazi. Stormy relations between the two NATO allies have improved since the two prime ministers met in the Swiss resort town of Davos last January and agreed to find peaceful solutions to outstanding disputes.

Aouita wins 800 metres

VERONA, Italy (R) - Multitalented Said Aouita cruised to a comfortable 800 metres victory in the sticky heat of Verona's Golden Gala athletics meeting Wednesday and confirmed he would run the distance in Seoul.

The diminutive Moroccan glanced briefly behind him as he crossed the line in one minute 44.64 seconds ahead of Britain's Peter Elliott, second in 1:44.75.

The 1,500 and 5,000 metres world record-holder began in low gear, running the first 200 metres in penultimate position before moving slowly up the field with Elliott on his shoulder.

The two men broke away with 150 metres to go but Elliott could not match the versatile Moroccan's finish.

Senegal's Moussa Fall was third in 1:45.03. "I could have gone earlier, but didn't feel like it," a smiling Aouita said after the race.

Sochaux set to stay on top in France

PARIS (R) — Newly-promoted first division leaders Sochaux will be hoping to continue their unexpectedly bright start to the French soccer season Saturday when they entertain 12th place Laval.

two wins in their opening three Netherlands' European-Chammatches, the impressive young Sochaux side will be seeking another victory to keep them ahead of second-placed Lille and the more established Giants of French soccer.

Lille entertain Boi Jeaux, who will be without their former England striker, Clive Allen. The ex-Tottenham player was injured Wednesday when he scored his first goal for his new club from a penalty against Montpellier.

Champions Monaco, lying fifth after two draws and one victory, travel to Normandy to meet another newly-promoted club, Caen, in a fixture which will see four other former England players in opposition.

The Riviers club include midfielder Glenn Hoddle and striker Mark Hateley in their expensively-assembled team for the second successive season.

Caen, struggling already after three successive defeats, include ex-Arsenal midfielder Graham Rix and ex-Luton striker Brian Stein, both signed during the close season.

In West Germany, much attention will be focused on Eitracht Frankfurt's temperamental goalkeeper Uli Stein who, with Toni Schumacher gone to Turkey, has emerged as the "Enfant Terrible" of the Bundesliga.

Stein is lucky to be able to play for Frankfurt against Stuttgart Kickers Saturday.

Stein, sacked by Hamburg two years ago after hitting an opponent, was sent off in the first match of the season last weekend for insulting the referee.

He escaped a ban and was fined 5,000 marks ($2,800) for his outburst as Frankfurt lost 3-0, a defeat which has left them sitting at the foot of the table. They should be able to make up ground Saturday, however, as Stuttgart Kickers, like the other newly-promoted team St. Pauli, lost at home last week. The defeat was greeted by taunts of only 33 games to go before relegation again."

Leaders Borussia Moencheng-

set to leave the club. Second and third-placed Karlsruhe and Bayern Munich meet in Karlsruhe. Champions Werder Bremen travel to Kaiserslautern.

In Oslo, striker Bernandes Edmar spared Brazil's blushes with a goal nine minutes from time which earned the South Americans a 1-1 draw with Norway in the first game of their three-match European soccer tour Thursday.

In his letter to Setien, Gil criticised the player for being single, saying he should have a wife to organise his life and take care of his washing and cooking.

Gil also accused Arteche of smoking too much and devoting too much time to his private shoe business and not enough to his soccer, and attacked Ramos for criticising him, disobeying the club coach and not training hard

Agassi beats Pugh to reach tennis quarterfinals

STRATTON MOUNTAIN (R) Second seed Andre Agassi survived a rocky start against 16th-seeded fellow American Jim Pugh to advance to the quarterfinals of the $602,500 International Grand Prix tennis tournament.

Agassi, ranked fifth in the world, changed his game plan after dropping the first set and went on to win 3-6, 6-3, 6-4.

Roger Smith of the Bahamas, who stunned world number one ivan Lendi Wednesday, scored his first career third round victory in a Grand Prix event with a comfortable 6-1, 6-4 win over unseeded American Eric Amend.

Two more seeded players fell on Thursday. Marty Davis took full advantage of an erratic performance by fellow American Aaron Krickstein, the fifth seed, upset, 10th-seeded American Jav Berger ousted seventh seed Peter Lundgren of Sweden 6-2, 6-3.

At the start of the second set. Agassi began hitting high arching lobs in an effort to force Pugh out of his baseline groove. The tactic worked beautifully as Pugh had trouble returning the high bouncing shots.

"He was counter-punching real well, hitting the ball real well, and I wanted to give him a chance to think," Agassi said of his change in tactics.

Agassi broke Pugh in the fourth game of the second set to go up 3-1 and then found his rhythm and began pounding his trademark explosive forehands past the 16th seed.

The second seed then surged to a 4-1 lead in the deciding set and held on for the victory.

"We have made every arrangement to accommodate them. There are rooms still reserved for North Koreans in the athletes' village and there are places reserved for their participation in the opening and closing ceremonies," he said.

Pyongyang is boycotting the Olympics because its demands to co-host the games were refused by the International Olympic ommittee (IOC).

IOC president Juan Antonio Samaranch told reporters in Lausanne Tuesday that North Korea could still participate in the Seoul games if it accepted a final compromise offer to host some archery, table tennis, women's volleyball, cycling and

Despite the fact that the IOC and SLOOC continue to hold the door open for Pyongyang's participation, it is widely believed that the logistics of changing the venues and schedules to North Korea at such a late stage would make this impossible.

"I'd eat my hat if we see Olympic events in Pyongyang," said one Western diplomat involved in his country's preparations for the games. "But it is still not too late for the North to send a team of athletes to Seoul. The infrastructure could cope with South Korea's ruling and opposition parties Wednesday agreed in principle to a North Korean offer to hold parliamentary talks between both sides in mid-August.

Sihanouk declares Bogor talks success

JAKARTA (Agencies) — Kampuchean leader Prince Norodom Sihanouk Friday declared peace talks this past week a success, then left Indonesia to continue efforts to end a decade of war in his homeland.

Sihanouk, the central figure in efforts to oust Vietnamese troops that entered Kampuchea in late 1978, left for Bangkok, Thailand, after a meeting with Vice-President Sudharmono.

Government officials said he was to leave Bangkok Saturday for China, which strongly backs the guerrillas and where Sihanouk has spent much of his exile. The prince then goes to Japan, which announced earlier this month it might fund a peacekeeping force he has proposed for post-war Kampuchea.

Officials in Thailand said he is scheduled to guide British Prime Minister Margaret Thatcher on a visit to his base on the Thai-Kampuchean border Aug. 7. During Sibanouk's stay in Jakarta. Vietnam, the guerrilla factions, Kampuchea's Vietnamese-backed government, Laos and the six-member Association of South-East Asian (ASEAN) Nations held four days of unprecedented peace talks on the Kampuchean conflict.

ASEAN includes Thailand, Indonesia, Malaysia, the Philippines. Singapore and Brunei.

Sihanouk did not attend the talks in Bogor, 60 kilometres outside Jakarta, but met Wednesday in the capital with the other factions. He reclaimed his high profile on the issue by presenting yet another peace plan and announcing he will hold a third round of separate talks in Paris with Prime Minister Hun Sen of the Kampuchean government in October.

Sihanouk did not attend the Bogor talks because he resigned July 10 as president of the resistance coalition, saying his nominal partner, the communist Khmer Rouge, was killing his men. His son, Prince Norodom Ranariddh, spoke for him at Bogor.

Presidential spokesman Moerdiono said Sudharmono saw the official-level working committee prince off at Merdeka Palace of all participants to the talks to Friday.

KARACHI (R) — Pakistan opposition leader Benazir Bhutto said Thursday general elections called by President Mohammad Zia Ul Haq for Nov. 16 would not be conducted fairly. "The elections will not be fair." she told a reception celebrating her receipt earlier this month of Austria's Bruno Kriesky Prize for Services to Human Rights. Bhutto, head of the Pakistan People's Party, also criticised Zia's decision to ban political parties from nominating candidates in the elections. He has said they could back people standing as individuals but the ban means party symbols, essential in a country where illiteracy is widespread, will not appear on ballot papers.

Khaleda Zia, president of the BNP, said the decision to expel the four officers was made late Wednesday. She did not elaborate on the reasons. Those expelled were Obaidur Rahman, former secretary-general of the party, and senior executives Abul Hasnat, Ahmad Nazir and Abul Kashem. Rahman helped Mrs. Zia's late husband, President Ziaur Rahman, organise the BNP in the late 1970s. He also supported Mrs. Zia's efforts to become head of the party in 1983 after her husband was assassinated.

Researchers find clues to inheritance of asthma

BAR HARBOR, Maine (AP) — Researchers have taken the first steps toward understanding the causes and the inheritance of asthma with the discovery of two asthma-related genes in labora-

According to Roy Levitt of the Johns Hopkins Medical Institutions in Baltimore, learning how these genes work could help doctors identify people at risk for asthma and also could speed the development of better drugs to treat it.

So far, Levitt and Wayne Mitzner, also of Johns Hopkins, have shown that at least two genes can produce a hypersensitivity in the bronchial tubes of mice.

It is not yet known whether these genes have counterparts in humans, Levitt said. The increased sensitivity of the airways to drugs or environmental agents, a phenomenon called increased bronchial reactivity, "is one of the halmarks of asthma," Levitt and Mitzner write in the current issue of the Faseb Journal, published by the Federation of American Societies for Experimental Biology. Levitt, who presented his findings at a genetics course at the Jackson Laboratory in Bar Harbor, said increased bronchial reactivity can lead both to asthma and to a serious lung disorder called chronic obstructive lung disease, in which patients experience extreme difficulty breathing.

The causes of asthma and chronic obstructive lung disease are not known, but inherited genetic factors and exposure to agents in the environment both play a role. Levitt said.

Studies of families in which asthma was inherited showed that even some family members without asthma had inherited an increased bronchial reactivity.

machines to monitor breathing in laboratory mice, and they have determined that at least two different genes in mice can lead to this bronchial sensitivity.

One of the genes has been shown to be inherited in mice as a recessive genetic trait.

Mandela sends peace message after fire

son Mandela has ordered that there should be no witch-hunt after his home was burned down South Africa's townships, his were not the objects of the lawyer said Friday.

The jailed black nationalist, in a message relayed by lawyer Ismail Ayob at a news conference, also repudiated a claim by black American businessman Robert Brown last week that he had been appointed to represent the Mandela family interests worldwide.

Ayob said Mandela was shocked by the news that his home in Johannesburg's Soweto township was gutted by fire Thursday.

"His first question was whether anyone had been hurt." said Ayob, who visited Mandela in Cape Town's Pollsmoor prison Thursday.
"He ordered that there should be no prosecution or witch-hunt. It is a matter that will be resolved by the people of Soweto." be Police and evewitnesses said

Thursday the small brick house in Soweto's Orlando West district was set alight by a gang of youths from a nearby school who smashed windows and poured petrol through all four rooms.

Ayob said Mandela had instructed that no report should be made to police about the fire and had told his wife, Winnie, not to make any comment to the press.

"Everything was destroyed. The house was utterly destroyed," Ayob said, adding that the loss included mementos, letters and documents belonging to Mandela who has been in prison since 1962.

He said the house would be rebuilt over the next few weeks. Mrs. Mandela would not move into the luxury mansion she had built recently in a section of Soweto known as Beverly Hills but would stay with friends.

Ban lifted, reimposed

In another development, the government Friday banned the anti-apartheid film "Cry Freedom," just hours after it opened at cinemas across the country. Justice Minister Kobie Coetsee said in a statement that further screenings of the film inside South Africa were prohibited under government security laws.

The film depicted the life of black activist Steve Biko and his death in police custody.

The publication appeals board announced earlier Friday that the film could be shown uncut. The first matinees began as scheduled a half-hour later at some 30 theatres around the country.

However, there was an explosion behind the Kings Cinema in the Alexandra township outside Johannesburg at noon (1000 GMT). The cinema was empty. and no one was injured, he added.

In the southern city of Port Elizabeth, a man called the Ster-Kinekor cinemas 10 minutes before the film was to start and said a bomb had been planted at the movie theatre complex.

LONDON (R) - A British scientist testing the age of the Turin shroud, which many Catholics believe was Christ's burial cloth, said Thursday: "If this is a fake, it's a very good one." Dr. Robert Hedges, head of the dating unit at Oxford University's laboratory for archaeology and the history of art, added: "I have now a pretty good idea of what I think it is but I'm not going to say." Hedges said he saw the shroud in Turin and it looked very convincing but it's quite hard to believe that it could survive that long." The Oxford team, the last of three laboratories to test the shroud, is about halfway through the process and Hedges said it was going very smoothly.

WINNIPEG, Manitoba (R) - A Danish man who smoked in an airliner toilet and threw a drink in the pilot's face was sentenced Thursday to 90 days in jail. Ole Svane Thestrup, 40, an actor from Copenhagen, pleaded guilty to a charge of mischief. He was out off the British Airways Boeing 747 at Winnipeg in an unscheduled stop Tuesday. The plane was flying from London to Los Angeles when Thestrup, who was seated in the non-smoking section, went into the plane's toilet to smoke, police said. A smoke alarm went off. Thestrup, who had been drinking, struggled with the crew, tried to open a loading door on the plane and, when challenged, threw a drink m the pilot's face, Winnipeg police said. The aircraft landed in Winnipeg to hand him over to police.

Rare Chinese fossils destroyed

PEKING (R) — Tons of valuable fossils in Inner Mongolia have been dug up, smashed and sold by looters believing them to be medicinal "dragon bones," the Guangming daily said Friday. The newspaper said hundreds of peddlers and smugglers had descended on sites in Qingshuihe county to dig up animal and plant fossils which they ground to powder for sale as traditional Chinese medicine. It said looters did severe damage to the sites, led by local government officials who issued "excavation permits" for 40 yuan ($11) apiece. The traditional Chinese medicine trade also threatens some protected species, since the most highly prized medicines depend on rare ingredients such as deer antler. bear paw, or panda penis.

Scientists discover carnivorous kangaroo

SYDNEY (R) - Scientists have discovered the remains of Australia's first carnivorous kangaroo which millions of years ago killed its victims with teeth serrated like a steak knife. The modern kangaroo, Australia's national emblem, is a herbivore and until now it was thought the unique bounding marsupial was strictly vegetarian. Doctor Michael Archer, associate professor of zoology at the University of New South Wales, said the first complete skull of the killer kangaroo was dug out of fossil deposits earlier this month. It was found at Riversleigh, a cattle station 250 kilometres north-west of Mount Isa in Queensland. Tests on the skull, estimated to be around 20 million years old, showed the kangaroo — scientific name ekaltadeta - was about 1.5 metres tall and had large premolar serrated teeth, archer said in a statement released Friday.
